

ONE DOZEN FACETS OF INTUITION

You made a snap decision without using any intellectual analysis

You trusted your gut in a tough or awkward situation

You used your instincts or physical reflexes in a potentially life or death scenario

You had a feeling about entering a place or situation that you could not define that something was not quite right

You trusted your intuition at the time but it turned out that you misread the situation and got it all wrong

You felt tired and down but you put in one of your best performances

You used your intuition effectively in a creative or problem-solving situation

You overcome stage fright or otherwise used nervous energy in a positive way

You experienced a palpable feeling of déjà vu

You instantly stereotyped somebody

You did the opposite of following all the sensible advice and arguments and followed your own feelings

You performed very well in a physical skill because all the long hours of training and practice, as well as your natural talent